team will be just as useful as your flight staff.

While not running the course, you participated in Flight Training Activities and participated in a class on uniform/customs & courtesies .

Another Encampment morning began with your second light morning PT session. Although fewer cadets fell out, Lt. Eggli still provided individual PT to some cadets.

After breakfast, the morning classes covered recruiting, CAP activities, and transitioning to the Air Force.

Following lunch you began running the Obstacle Course. Over three hours, the 109th, 110th and 111th squadrons built teamwork and flight cohesion as they completed the challenging course. The completion of the O-course marks the beginning of a new stage of learning, where your Next you practiced volleyball, went to the retreat formation, and then went to dinner.

After dinner you experienced your second inspection. Finally, the day is over and its time to recuperate for tomorrow.
